Fighting for Workers

We fight together as a union for fair contracts and, when it comes to public policy, we fight alongside our allies in Congress and with President Biden to make the economy more fair for working people.

Over the past two years, we've worked together to:

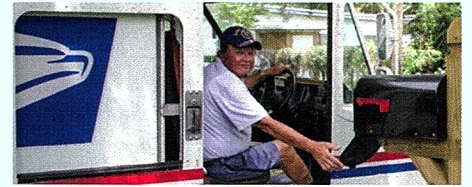

Saved Essential Public Services.

We prevented drastic cuts to essential public services by securing $350 billion in the American Rescue Plan that saved the jobs of America's front-line public service workers.

Investing in Public Transportation.

The infrastructure bill passed by Congress and signed by President Biden included more than $100 billion in funding for public transportation, including improved safety measures and modernization of old bus and rail fleets.

Reformed the Postal Service.

After a long fight, union members and our allies passed the Postal Service Reform Act, which makes the U.S. Postal Service financially stable, ends the destructive prefunding retiree health care mandate, and saves six-day delivery and rural post offices.

Unions make us stronger—and our president and congressional champions know: Union members experienced less job loss than nonunion workers during COVID-19.

But there's more to do beyond these fights.
